PARR LEASE EXTENDED BY 40 YEARS

RICHMOND FIRE LOSS LOWEST PER CAPITA IN U. S.

Windrem And Parr Lock Horns Over Angles Of City Tidelands Lease

MEASURE APPROVED WITH BUT ONE DISSENTING VOTE; PROTESTS ARE NOT DISCUSSED

After reading several communications affecting the matter, the council last evening voted to extend the Parr Terminal Company lease for an additional forty years.

ONE DISSENTING VOTE

All members of the council were present with the exception of Councilman E. J. Garrard, and all voted for the extension with the exception of Councilman Fenner. When he was asked by Parr if he was not willing to change his vote and make it "unanimous" he replied that he did not care to.

NO DISCUSSION

After the many communications were read in connection with the lease, the protest that had been filed by Attorney Windrem, a letter Parr's attorneys in which they claimed that some sections of the lease had been misinterpreted, and a letter from Parr, in which he told the council of what he had done this far, there was no discussion on the lease by the members of the council.

Councilman George F. Black, moved the adoption of the ordinance which extends the lease for forty more years, and the vote was then taken.

WINDREM TAKES EXCEPTION

Attorney Windrem took the floor and took exceptions to the statements that had been made in the communication by Parr's attorneys. He stated that so far as the features of the protest were concerned they were before the people, and he was willing to stand or fall by their judgment, intimating that no matter what action the council might take on the extension matter, that the people of the city had the final say in the matter, evidently meaning a referendum.

"SMOKE SCREEN"—WINDREM

Windrem maintained that while he had not quoted every word of the lease in his protest he had used enough of the sections to make himself clear, and resented bitterly the imputation of Parr's attorneys that he had questioned the integrity of the council in any manner. "This is one of the means of a smart lawyer," said Windrem, "who attempts to throw a smoke screen about the facts.

"NO MISREPRESENTATION" — WINDREM

"The suit that I brought in the Superior Court," said Windrem "to have the Parr lease declared null and void is still pending. The court denied the injunction I asked for, because the Parr people took a shot gun squad and took possession of the city property, and when that was done there was no need of an injunction, and I agreed with the court. No questions involved in the suit have yet been determined. There has been no misrepresentation on my part

Mrs. Elmer Conn Answers Call

After an illness of five days, Mrs. Elmer G. Conn, one of the most favorably known of the prominent younger matrons of this city and wife of a prominent druggist, passed away at the El Reposo sanitarium in Berkeley at noon Sunday.

Although Mrs. Conn had been in a serious condition since her removal to the hospital, for a long time she showed slight improvement and hopes for her recovery were felt. Her illness took a turn for the worse Saturday.

Mrs. Conn, who was a native of Illinois, came to Richmond at the age of seven years. She received her education here and was popular in the younger set, taking part in social activities.

Mrs. Conn is survived by her husband and two small children, Doris Elaine, three years, and Claire Elizabeth, seven weeks.

Funeral services will be conducted in St. Edmund's Episcopal church, the Rev. H. I. Oberholtzer, officiating. Pending word from relatives, the date for the services has not been set. Wilson and Kratzer are in charge.

Richmond Club Endorses Bond Issue At First Meeting Of Season

Richmond club held its initial meeting of the new club season yesterday, opening with a luncheon in the clubhouse, the president, Mrs. S. B. Wilson presiding. Following a short talk by Hall Sanders in the interests of the coming election, the club went unanimously on record as endorsing the harbor bonds.

Cook, H. W. Bowen, Fannie B. Jackson, B. F. Miner and J. M. Craven. Under the direction of Mrs. M. Slosilo assisted by Mrs. R. G. Lee and Mrs. Robert Huston the rooms were very attractively decorated with flowers and greenery. Mrs. A. C. Burdick and Mrs. C. R. Alexander arranged the tables with pink flowers and colored candles.

During an intermission, Mrs. R. Robbins sand "Still As the Night," by Bohm; "Sylvia," by Oley Speakes, and "A Memory," by Fairchild. She was accompanied by Miss Mildred Frasier.

Mrs. Wilson introduced the new officers and announced the various departments and committees for the coming year. Each chairman gave a brief outline of plans for the year: Mrs. R. Robbins in charge of the music section will also conduct a regular choral session every Tuesday morning; Mrs. R. G. Lee in her welfare section, will work on several lines, including local welfare, family relief, county maternity and children's hospital, Christmas seals and Christmas charities; Mrs. M. Slo-

HOW MONEY GROWS

It is really wonderful how interest, added to regular deposits even though they are small, counts up. The attractive interest now paid by Building and Loan Associations, which are under state supervision and as strong and safe as anything can be, offers unusual opportunity to those who want to get ahead. For definite information consult the Buyers Guide on the classified page.

Ex-Policeman Shot In Leg In Resistance To Arrest Here

Revolver Slipping From Officer's Holster Is Discharged

Accidentally wounded in the left leg while resisting arrest early yesterday morning, George Baldwin former Richmond police officer, is in the Cottage hospital and a charge of resisting an officer has been placed against him.

Patrolman James Eads was sent to McBryde and San Pablo avenues at about 5 o'clock, when reports were received by the police that two men were intoxicated. He found Baldwin and Steve Bogunovick, taxi driver, asleep in a car which had been wrecked against a curb.

Patrolman Eads arrested the taxi driver and placed him in the police car. Baldwin, he alleges, resisted arrest and struck Eads in the face with his fists. During a scuffle on the floor of the officer's car, Eads alleges that his gun slipped from his holster and was accidentally discharged. The bullet entered Baldwin's left leg above the ankle.

He was taken to the Abbott Emergency hospital where it was found that the bone had been fractured by the bullet. He was later removed to the Cottage hospital.

Bogunovick was taken to the police station and charged with intoxication. He was sentenced to thirty days with committment withheld when he appeared in court yesterday.

Promotor Of Big Oil Swindle To "Do" 10 Years

James W. Gough, promoter of the famous $800,000,000 Golet oil swindle, which cost many Richmond and Contra Costa people their life savings a few years ago, must serve a maximum term of ten years in San Quentin for his participation in the merger.

This was announced yesterday by the board of state prison directors which fixed the term.

Peggy Reeves, convicted as another of the principals in the merger, was given greater consideration by the board, which fixed her term at five years, with half-time parole. This means that with good behavior, she can gain her freedom within nine months, she has already served more than a year in San Quentin.

Gough has served a year and five months. He pleaded guilty to violation of the corporate securities act, while Peggy Reeves was convicted with her husband, Edwin F. Reeves, and Franklin P. Davis following a jury trial in Oakland. They were tried on 12 counts of grand larceny.

Sentences of two Los Angeles councilmen charged with accepting bribes also were fixed by the prison directors. Charles Downs, who has already served one year, must serve six years, with half-time parole, while Joseph Fitzpatrick, second of the two former officials, was given five pears with half-time parole.

OAKLAND AIRPORT, August 15.—Nine airplanes were straining at the leash today while a gentle cross-wind swept the field from which tomorrow at one minute past twelve (noon) twenty one human beings will attempt to cheat death and the broad Pacific ocean in what has been termed a "battle against elements" in man-made machines to gain Honolulu some 2,400 miles away and cash prizes of $35,000.

AMERICAN OPPORTUNITY

A Georgia negro, who had been a slave in his youth died at Atlanta recently leaving an estate of a million dollars and what is still better, the esteem of all who had known him regardless of race.

He started as a barber in his early twenties and his industry and courteous manner won him the respect of his white cusomers who steadily grew in number. When he died he had many outside interests but retained his original shop which had grown from a one-man affair to one requiring the services of forty-two men. And this colored capitalist had more than seven hundred negroes working for him in one capacity or another at the time of his death.

There ought to be a lesson for all of us in this man's career. He did not have the priceless heritage of American liberty at the time of his birth. But by using industry and sound judgment coupled with courtesy and attendance to business he was able to make a success of his life under what to most men would appear to be insurmountable difficulties.

The life of this negro is only another evidence of what can be done in America. Even the humblest child may later in life win some sort of success by proper attention to business. The qualities most required are honesty, industry, a reasonable amount of intelligence and by staying on the job.

Opportunities are greater in America now than ever before. The country is expanding and developing in a way that was undreamed of a few years ago. All of this expansion and progress means new opportunities for American youth.

Surely if a man born in slavery with the handicap of color can win his way to success, there is no reason why the average American youth should feel afraid.

Betty Fat And Peggy Thin To Begin Race

"Here is something I want you to explain," writes Betty H. in a long letter to me. "I am 18 years old and am very much over weight, nearly fifteen pounds. I have a sister a year older who is fifteen pounds under weight.

"Now the question is this: We both live at home. We work during the day at the same sort of jobs. We are both stenographers. We eat the same foods and do the same sort of things. Yet I want to get thin and she wants to put on weight.

"We have promised ourselves that we will follow your advice and hold a little contest and see which one of us reaches normal weight first. Mother has promised some sort of a real worth while prize to the winner. Won't you please help us?"

It is very simple to explain why the difference in weight has occurred. I will be willing to wager that Betty is a placid sort of person who doesn't like to walk. She may eat the same kind of food, but I'll bet that she eats more of it than her sister does. And as for her sister, I can guess that Margaret is a wiry, active girl, she is always romping around doing something, a big nervous energy. She is probably fond of sports and is continually active.

Margaret's diet should be increased to include body building foods. Between meals she should drink a glass of half milk and half cream. This should be sipped slowly or it will do no good. She should learn to relax and take things easy. She should get ten hours sleep. Daily cocoa butter massage would also be good in helping build up the tissues.

Betty should do almost the opposite. I would advise her to take a three day fast, drinking only water. Use an enema daily. Break the fast by drinking orange juice. Keep the diet down to green vegetables and fruits. Eat no white bread and very little whole wheat. Walk at least a mile a day. Exercise morning and night vigorously and finish off with a cold plunge and brisk rubdown with a rough turkish towel.

Bertha: There are many liquid foods that are nourishing. Once you have taken off weight you can easily put it back on again.

All vegetable soups are good with the exception of pea or potato or cream soups. Clam broth is good. Fresh green vegetables and thin slices of graham bread toast, unbuttered, will supply the solids.

Avoid all sweets which include cane sugars. Natural fruit sugars cannot cause you to put on weight.

Vigorous Health

I am afflicted in my right elbow so that I cannot bend it or carry the hand to the face. It started in my left hand, then moved to my legs, then the right hand and elbow. Please advise what to do. MRS. ELLA B.

Your description is not very clear, but I presume you have arthritis. In this case, the usual treatment by natural methods would be an orange diet for five to seven days, followed by a largely raw fruit and vegetable diet, together with sun baths, cool baths, deep breathing and exercise so far as the condition will permit. Massage and manipulation of the affected parts, starting lightly, would also be helpful. Repeated orange diets will probably be necessary. Tea, coffee, tobacco, alcohol and medicines must not be used.

I have a double hernia, though not very bad. Will you advise what I should do to avoid wearing a truss or submitting to an operation?—F. McC.

I know of no way you can avoid wearing a truss for a time. The hernia must be held constantly in position if results are to be secured. If it as allowed to come down off and on, the opening cannot be expected to close. However, after the muscles have been well developed by exercise the truss can be gradually discarded. Diet is important so as to avoid constipation, and a five-day fast at the start of treatment is often very helpful. The abdominal exercises are taken head down on a slanting board, and are followed by a cold sitz bath.

How To Earn Money at Home

By Sara Spence

I have a comfortable little place up in Westchester county and had planned to take summer boarders. But I find this thing of preparing three meals a day, seven days a week, to say nothing of cleaning, etc., a bit overtaxing. What do you think of the idea of simply having "paying guests" for the week end only. This would give me a change to rest occasionally, and at the same time I would be making a little money. And how should I go about getting them? MRS. JESSICA T.

I am sure there are many business girls in New York City who would be only too glad to take advantage of your offer, provided your prices are within their reach. A little advertisement in one of the papers would bring your offer to their attention, no dubt.

I have written you twice about obtaining envelopes to address at home, but I haven't heard from you. What is the trouble? C. J.

Please don't feel that your letters have been ignored. My space is quite limited and to be fair with everyone I can only answer the letters in the order in which they are received. Each letter must take its turn. For envelopes to address I can only refer you to the various publishing houses. You will find their names and addresses in the city directory.

Do you grant personal interviews and do you give personal advice by mail? I should like to talk to you regarding some embroidered pieces and crochet articles which I have on haad and would like to dispose of. MRS. B.

I am sorry, but there are so many demands on my time that I find it impossible to grant personal interviews or give personal advice by mail except in extreme cases. I am only too glad to give you every bit of help possible through the column. Have you tried the various Woman's Exchanges as a market for your hand work? If you will write me again being a little more explicit, perhaps I can give something more definite in the way of suggestions. Watch for your answer in this column.

I am an artist and have been quite successful in color work as well as black and white. Now that things are somewhat dull I am working on some designs for art needlework, but I do not seem to be getting my work across. I'm quite discouraged. I know my work is good, yet when I send these designs out—back they come. What would you advise? LULU ".

Doubtless you are making your designs too elaborate. Consider the needlewoman. Or perhaps they are a bit too "artistic." This is frequently the case when artist turns designed. Remember you are making something for the average woman to copy with needle and thread—and the average woman is not an artist. Or, perhaps you are asking too much for your designs. That, also, is frequently the case when artist turns designer. Spend less time on them and charge less.

Mrs. Sarah Spence will answer all questions on "How to Earn Money at Home." Address her care of this paper.

It's Well To Think Beauty, But Only Work Will Win It!

By LADY BEATRICE GREY

Thinking beauty won't make you beautiful. It may help you to acquire beauty through activity—but the mere thinking will never get you to your goal. True, thinking may keep your mind on beauty and cause you to strive for it, but it is actually your actions which will bring youbeauty of form and face.

Just wishing won't get you anywhere. Mental and physical inertia will defeat your aim. Its this activity which will cause beauty to burst forth in glowing fullness.

Gilding the lily won't help matters either. A hard, thick coat of powder and paint on top of an unhealthy skin can never bring the same fresh beauty that unadorned freshness gives.

Be healthy and you won't need unnatural beauty aids.

A beauty expert once told me, and hundreds of girls since have attested to its efficaciousness that these simple rules will bring glowing complexions.

First, at the end of the day thoroughly cleanse your face, removing all grime, powder and paint.

Second: Drink a glass of cold water before retiring to flush out your system.

And third, drink two glasses each morning when you arise. This cleanses your body and gets it ready for a good day's work.

A clean body brings a clean complexion.

Don't scorn good pure water and soap. To be sure, the soap should be pure and the water soft. See that both things are true.

This reminds me of an anecdote I heard awhile ago. A young girl went to see a beauty doctor and asked the sure road to beauty.

She was give na bottle of clear, colorless, sparkling fluid and told to place one drop of this in a tub of bath water each day. After several months had passed, she came back to the doctor and demanded to know what wash in the magic pital. He finally admitted it was nothing but pure distilled water. It as his method of teaching her to bathe regularly.

Many of us can learn a deep lesson from this.

Cleanliness is the handmaiden of beauty.

Questions concerning beauty building through physical culture will receive the personal attention of Lady Grey, beauty culturist, and should be signed by the writer's full name and address, which will not be used without permission. Address her, care of this newspaper.

MARBLE TOP

At counters where I eat my lunch
In dim arcades of industry,
I cock my elbows up and munch
Whatever food occurs to me.

By many mirrors multiplied
My silly face is not exalted,
And when I leave I have inside
An egg-and-lettuce and a malted.

And just to hear the pretty peal
Of merry maids at their pimento
Is more to me than any meal
Or banquet that I ever went to.

When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, leaves the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beautiful sister whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, lures her to Ravoir, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and escapes her off to Paris. Manon's brother steals her for Ravoir. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. She rejoins Fabien and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The King, incognito, asks to meet Manon, then plays Fabien at cards.

The King appropriated the first deal. He lost the hand and a sum of money that brought forth an irritable frown. Fabien noticed it and inquired politely:

"Do you care to continue?" He stacked his winnings in neat piles.

The King meditated a moment. He prided himself on his playing and was an ungracious loser. An idea that had been struggling in the back of his mind since learning of the relationship between Manon and Fabien suddenly became clarified.

"We shall continue by all means—and the stakes are to be higher," he said sharply.

"It is immaterial to me," Fabien replied with a shrug of unconcern.

King Lou's noticed his opponent's indifference. It angered him.

"We will play for the stakes I suggest!"

Deliberately turning around in his chair he looked at Manon with the same sort of expression that a hungry wolf flashes upon his prey.

Fabien did not miss the by-play. His lips set in a hard, straight line. He drew in his breath sharply and exerted every effort to refrain from making a scene.

Manon was so superbly created for love that it is not strange the King, as well as others, desired her. Nor is it strange that Fabien, as her chosen lover, should resent the covetous glances that other men showered upon her. One comfort was the assurance of Manon's fidelity to him. He thought her so good, so innocent and precious that he forgot the horrible incidents of the past which caused others to classify her as a different woman entirely.

When the King again turned his attention to the game Fabien's face was inscrutable. His hands were too well trained to shake, but his heart was pounding furiously.

With the effect of just having evolved the idea, the King said: "We will resume playing. This time the stakes will be any of my possessions that you may choose to name against—" the King leaned across the table, "Mademoiselle Lescaut!"

For a second Fabien's heart stopped beating. His eyes shone like pin points of steel. Without fear he looked squarely into the King's masked eyes and said:

"Monsieur—one does not reach to Heaven for a star and fling it upon the soiled cloth of a gaming table."

A quick flush of anger suffused Louis' face. "We will play for the stakes I suggest!" It was the King rather than the man speaking.

"I will not play!" Fabien's jaw was set. Only his eyes smiled. With a gesture of finality he placed his cards on the table.

"Are you uncertain of your skill—or merely afraid?" the King insinuated.

"Neither!" Fabien's calmness annoyed the King.

With an angry gesture Louis ripped off his mask and exposed himself to the interested spectators, who by this time had gathered close about the table.

"The King! King Louis of France!" came in loud whispers from many throats.

Fabien knew the identity of his opponent, there was no reason to admit it until now. He had not been granted the honor of being properly presented. The King, on his part, had felt secure in his incognito. He had entirely forgotten about the royal coat of arms on his little finger ring and had no idea that Fabien had known him from the first.

"Now we will play," said the King, as though the matter were settled beyond dispute. No one could refuse the King of France.

"I am only a subject of France—you are her King!" Fabien was not in a position to say more, and it would have been treason to refuse now that the King's identity had been made known.

Without another word the King picked up the cards. He omitted the formality of cutting and dealt.

Manon and Fabien looked deeply into each other's eyes across the few feet of space that separated them. Hers were filled with pleading and terror. Fabien's tried to say, "Don't worry, darling mine, I will win!"

The Duc de Richelieu restrained Manon from going to Fabien's side.

When news of the King's presence spread about the room other games and tables were deserted. The air became electric with tense excitement and suspense. Everyone gathered about the small table where His Majesty King Louis of France was playing with the most expert card man of Paris.

Fabien's face was stolid, inscrutable. He was playing for his very life.

The King fanned his cards and glanced at them furtively with narrowing eyes. They played. Fabien took the first trick. The King won the second. The third again fell to Fabien. He hesitated long enough to catch Manon's attention. His soul was in his eyes, and she did her best to smile back encouragingly. The game went on.

"This will be the last deal, Monsieur—the next hand will decide the game!" The King was nervous.

"As you will, Your Majesty." Fabien bowed, but there was no trace of emotion in his face or manner. His control was superb.

The King played with conscious deliberation. His first three cards were all kings. A smile of satisfaction followed each one to the board. It seemed to say, "You have only one chance to beat a King." The double meaning was significant to everyone. But each time Louis' smile quickly disappeared as he saw his antagonist top his card with an ace! He watched furtively, plainly annoyed rather than worried, at such unusual luck.

Fabien's steely eyes did not miss a single move of his opponent's. He saw him manipulate a card, although he gave no sign. Up until this point Fabien's success had been due entirely to luck. Fate had given him the ace of spades, clubs and hearts as well as one useless card of small denomination. He had taken three tricks—the game was his! Fabien permitted a relieved smile to relax his face, the last trick would not matter. Then why was the King surreptitiously changing his last card? Fabien's temples pounded furiously.

The King was speaking: "The cards we have played do not count. Whoever takes this last trick wins!"

The injustice of the thing was appalling. However, it made Fabien understand the hopelessness of the situation. No! It must not be hopeless. He must win!

Fabien had learned how to cheat in order to give Manon all the luxuries she craved. Now he would cheat to keep her for his own. It was well he had practiced—he needed it. The King was watching him intently. Fabien did not waver. Catching Louis' gaze, he looked into the pupils of the royal eyes until they contracted to needle point dimension in an effort to shut out the hypnotic force that prevented him from turning away. While Fabien's eyes thus held the King's attention he manipulated his last worth'ess card. The card that was to decide Manon's fate. He managed it so cleverly that Lescaut was the only other one in the room who knew what had happened. His admiration did him credit.

It was Fabien's turn to play. He turned up the ace of diamonds! The highest card left in the pack!

No one dared make a sound—their King had lost!

A peculiar expression lighted up the King's face. He looked slowly from Fabien to the winning ace on the table, then back to the lone card in his own hand. After a moment's deliberation he played—the ace of diamonds!

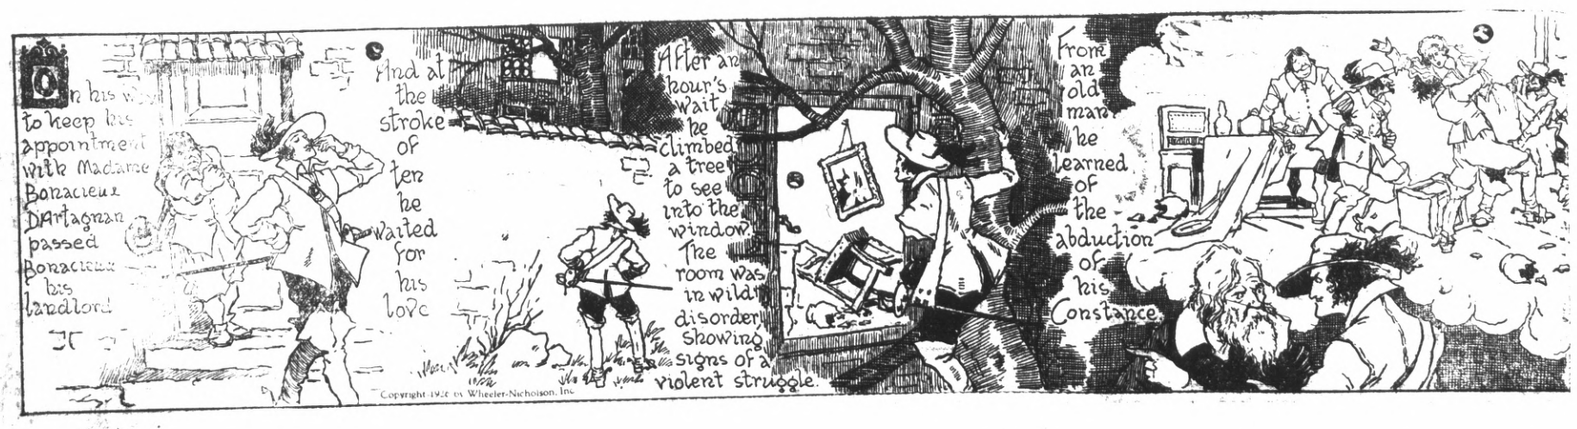

A breathless silence filled the room.

The Chevalier Des Grieux had been caught cheating. His face was white, but he continued to look steadily at the King.

Manon was terrified.

A gleam of triumph made the Comte De Ravoir look like a younger and happier man. This was superior to any punishment he had been able to think of.

AMUSING FARCE OF IRISH LIFE AT CALIFORNIA

"Built for laughs." This is the only phrase that would describe "The Callahans and the Murphys," Kathleen Norris' lilting romance of Irish life, as transferred to the screen by Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, and is now showing at the California Theatre.

It is not a collection of laughs, it's literally one prolonged howl of mirth. From the opening battle of the Callahans and the Murphys to the final fade-out, with the family in battle again, it's a series of comical combats, tangled tribulations and hilarious happenings.

Sally O'Neil scores a triumph as Ellen Callahan, heroine of the comical romance. She and Larry Gray supply the romance, in a delicate little love story with just a bit of a heart throb, that is woven through the collection of chuckles, giggles and guffaws that ram the picture. Miss O'Neil does some of the best work in her brief career as the little Irish girl.

For laughs—there is Marie Dressler, famous for "Tillie's Punctured Romance," in the role of the redoubtable "Mrs. Callahan" in constant battle with the sharp-tongued "Mrs. Murphy," as played by Polly Moran. Gertrude Olmsted as the beautiful "Monica Murphy," has another bit of love interest—with the comical Eddie Gribbon as her lover—a combination so incongruous that in itself it is comedy to gaze upon.

George Hill, who gave the world "Tell It to the Marines," directed the new picture and discloses that his forte is whimsical comedy. All the comedy is based in natural situations and real life happenings, all his characters are human beings, hence their convincing qualities.

Frank Currier, Drew Demarest, Tom Lewis, Turner Savage, Monty O'Grady, Dawn O'Day, Jackie Coombs and many other clever petople appear in well portrayed roles in the new comedy picture which Frances Marion adapted for the screen.

Other features include the fifth chapter of "Melting Millions", "Variety"; and "Topics.

PETER GRIMM BIG TRIUMPH AT RICHMOND

For poignancy, sweeping drama and comedy of the highest order, for good, wholesome entertainment, in other words—see Fox Films version of "The Return of Peter Grimm," which greatly impressed audiences at the Richmond theatre last night when it opened a two day engagement.

Alec B. Francis, Janet Gaynor and Richard Walling are included in the excellent cast chosen by Director Victor Schertzinger for the screen version of David Belasco's noted drama which deals with life's greatest question—can the dead commune with the living?

One of the highlights of the photoplay comes when the kindly but peppery old Peter Grimm returns in the spirit after his death. One of the most touching climaxes ever incorporated into a photoplay is to be seen in "Peter Grimm."

Victor Schertzinger used good taste throughout the filming. The story is carried along at an even pace and the situations—both comic and dramatic—have been built up in such a way as to get the utmost from them.

Bradley King prepared the screen play.

Other film features include "Should Husbands Pay" a Hal Roach comedy; "Topics of the Day" and Aesops Fables.

Fence Takes On Varied Colors At Nightfall

Can you imagine painting a fence gray in the afternoon and waking up next morning to find the same fence a brilliant green? That is what happened to T. P. Mallison, 114 Ardmore street, Kensington Park.

Last Saturday, Mallison spent the afternoon painting his garden fence and he painted it gray. When he awoke Sunday morning the color had changed to green. He began investigating and found that he was missing a saw, level and jack from his tool house.

He reported the whole affair to Deputy Sheriff T. E. Martenstein. From a neighbor, Mr. D. P. lick, deputy sheriff learned that several boys repainted the fence at about 10:30 Saturday night. Martenstein is searching the Kensington Park district for the stolen property.

PARR TERMINAL GIVES REPORT ON WORK DONE AT WATERFRONT SINCE GRANTING OF THE LEASE

in our original sale and 11 acres in a subsequent sale).

3. We have secured agreements from the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific agreeing to construct their main lead tracks to serve the inner harbor and industrial lands of the city of Richmond and to provide car storage yards to meet all of the requirements of the Ford Motor Co.

4. All rights-of-way for the railroad companies have been secured so that there can be no delay in carrying out the constructing of the tracks other than to wait until the land has sufficiently settled to make possible the construction of said railroad tracks.

5. We have arranged with the United States to join with the city of Richmond in dredging a channel 200 feet in width and 30 feet in depth to meet the temporary requirements of the Ford Motor Co. This was done with the money available from the sale of bonds owned by the city of Richmond, and was accomplished as a result of a great deal of negotiating, all of which is a matter of common knowledge in the city of Richmond.

6. We guaranteed to the United States that we would construct a terminal facility on the inner harbor of Richmond to cost not less than $100,000, for the handling of general commercial shipping in the event that the city of Richmond failed to construct such a facility. This was necessary as an added guarantee before the United States would proceed with the dredging of the channel to meet the Ford requirements.

7. We arranged with the Bay Transport Company to again make deliveries of sugar to the inner harbor of Richmond, which business had been discontinued to this port.

8. We caused to be dedicated to the city of Richmond, free of cost, the lands necessary for the 300 foot channel to be used by the Ford Motor Co.

9. We deeded, or caused to be deeded, to the city of Richmond lands covering the extension of 14th street and 10th street, likewise the connecting street between 14th street and 10th street, to be known as Hall avenue.

10. We handled the negotiations by which the levees have been constructed around the bay counties, Gilmore and municipal lands in the vicinity of the inner harbor of Richmond.

11. The levees around the Bay counties land will permit these lands to be filled to grade, thereby meeting the requirements of the Ford Motor Co. in providing a foundation for the construction of its plant, likewise the foundation for the streets and car storage yards to be constructed on said lands. Only the surplus material is being deposited on the Gilmore lands.

12. Arrangements have been worked out for the paving of the streets to meet the requirements of the Ford Motor Co. All of this street work does not have to be done at this time; in fact, only the extension of 10th street, and that only for a width of 30 feet, so as to make it possible to get materials to the proposed Ford plant, likewise to the location on the waterfront where the proposed terminal facilities are to be constructed by the city of Richmond and the Parr Terminal Company. Over fifty per cent of this street, where it enters the bay counties lands, which were acquired by the Parr Terminal Co., lies alongside of property owned by the city of Richmond and on which the street work would have to be paid for by the city even though no mention were made of it in the lease between the city of Richmond and the Parr Terminal Co., and more than fifty per cent of the extension of the street lies alongside of property which has been acquired by the Ford Motor Co. and which street assessment would have to be paid for by the Ford Motor Co. if no concession were made in the lease covering the construction of street work. This matter was thrashed out in the various sessions with the city council and an arrangement covering the basis of constructing the streets was unanimously agreed upon, and is clearly stated in the lease between the city of Richmond and the Parr Terminal Co.

13. The city of Richmond and the Parr Terminal Co. secured a decision from Judge McKenzie of the superior court of Contra Costa county denying the application of a taxpayer of Richmond for an injunction against the granting of the lease by the city of Richmond to the Parr Terminal Co.

14. The city of Richmond and Parr Terminal Co. secured the unanimous approval of the last legislature of the state of California to a bill which was signed by Governor Young disclaiming any interest on the part of the state in the lands leased by the city of Richmond to the Parr Terminal Co. This will completely answer the suit filed by the same taxpayer of Richmond.

15. The city of Richmond and the Parr Terminal Co. secured the approval of every vote in the Senate and all but two votes in the assembly at the last session of the legislature, of a bill that was signed by Governor Young giving municipalities the right to lease their lands for periods of time not exceeding 50 years. This forms the foundation of the action you are about to take tonight, and has been thoroughly understood by all citizens of Richmond.

16. A harbor bond election has been called for August 23rd next, in the sum of $690,000, which, if carried, will enable the city to go her part in dredging a channel 400 feet in width and 32 feet in depth. This will permit the city of Richmond to comply with her promise to the Ford Motor Co., which promise was made through the Parr Terminal Co.

17. The voting of the harbor bonds will place the city in position to secure a re-survey of Richmond harbor by the United States engineer. Congressman Curry has assured the city of Richmond that if the bonds are voted, thereby placing Richmond in position to match the United States dollar for dollar in the dredging of a channel to the greater width and depth, that he will secure the re-survey for the harbor of Richmond.

18. An expert has been employed to compile the information to show that sufficient tonnage can be secured for the harbor of Richmond to justify the United States in joining with the city in dredging a wider and deeper channel. Mr. Butler, who was recommended by Major Schulz, United States District Engineer at San Francisco, is now engaged in preparing this report.

19. Based upon the harbor bonds being voted in the sum of $690,000, and the necessary dredging being done, the city and the Parr Terminal Co. have agreed to construct a combined terminal facility on the inner harbor of Richmond to cost approximately [illegible]. The plans are now being drawn and they call for [illegible] and a layout in every respect [illegible] with other cities on San Francisco bay so far as freight rates are concerned.

20. The approving of a channel to the wider width and depth will involve an expenditure in dredging said channel of approximately $500,000, which expenditure will be born equally by the United States and the city of Richmond. Under existing conditions the channel must be maintained to a width of 200' and a depth of 30', under the guarantee made to the Ford Motor Company, and this cost will involve an annual expenditure, according to reports of the United State engineers of approximately $30,000. It is estimated that the wider and deeper channel will cost approximately $40,000 per year to maintain, but once the channel has been dredged to the approved width and depth the maintance cost for all time to come will be paid by the United States without a dollar of cost to the city of Richmond. A wider and deeper channel is essential for the fullest development of the harbor of Richmond, and when it is realized that by the expenditure of approximately $250,000 in the approved channel and approximately $100,000 between the approved channel and the bulkhead, the city can place itself in position to attract all types of shipping to its harbor and at the same time save $40,000 per year in maintenance costs, which will be more than enough to amortize the bonds with interests and at the same time allow money enough to construct the first unit of a Terminal facilitiy on the Inner Harbor to cost approximately $250,000 and at the same time allow nearly $100,000 for general purposes, all of which can be done without a dollar of cost to the taxpayers of Richmond, and at the same time profit everp citizen of Richmond is there any valid reason why any objection should be voiced to the approving of the bond on August 23?

21. The Parr Terminal Company was invited to come to the city of Richmond, and in the early stages of our negotiations a very definite and comprehensive plan of development was outlined, all of which was thrashed out by the City Council, Chamber of Commerce, and other groups, and having been unanimously agreed upon by all of these official bodies, that plan has been strictly adhered to, and we are proud to state that every item in that plan which was outlined more than a year ago has been carried out to the letter so far as our part of the arrangement is concerned. There are only two things remaining to be done at this time to allow us to go forward with the larger plan; one is the voting of the extension of the lease by the City Council in accordance with our definite understanding, and the other is the voting of the bonds by the city of Richmond, which will, not only give the city the necessary funds to do its part in the dredging and constructing of facilities, but if the bonds are carried by an overwhelming majority it will be a notice to the world that Richmond is united back of her harbor and industrial expansion program.

22. We have incorporated a new company to be known as Parr Terminal Corporation, which will have charge of our Richmond operations as distinguished from the Parr Terminal Company, which will continue to have charge of our Oakland operations. Our Articles of Incorporation call for a board of eleven directors, six of whom will be outstanding citizens of the city of Richmond. It has been our purpose right from the start to tie in as closely as possible with the City of Richmond in every phase of our operation and this plan allows us to have the benefit of the judgement and guidance of the men who have at heart the very best interests of the city of Richmond.

23. We have never represented to the city of Richmond or any other group in it, even from our earliest negotiations to the present time, that the city could look for any particular profit from the direct returns on its harbor improvements, but if the city of Richmond would place at our disposal the lands, facilities and bonding capacity so far as it could bond itself for harbor improvements, we would on that foundation construct a harbor which would place Richmond on an equality with any other point on San Francisco bay so far as freight rates are concerned, and that we would carry out a plan which would tie in all of the industrial lands in the vicinity of the inner harbor of Richmond, making them suitable for industrial purposes and providing them with both rail and water transportation, thereby giving this area a real value as industrial lands, whereas these lands are practical valueless under the existing conditions for either residential or industrial purposes. We have carried out our part of this arrangement and propose to go forward with an even larger plan, with the cooperation of the City Council, Chamber of Commerce and other outstanding groups of leaders of the city of Richmond.

24. We appreciate that the plans for the city of Richmond could not and cannot be carried out by any individual or any small group of individuals unless they have the full backing of the community as a whole. The city elects its members of the City Council and it trusts them with the responsibility of safe-guarding the interests of the city. Since the original lease was granted a new election has been held and certain members have been added to the City Council, and if there had been any reason why the citizens of Richmond as a whole did not want the 40 year extension granted, they had ample opportunity to make that an issue at the last election, and we, therefore, have full confidence that the great mass of the people of the city of Richmond are squarely behind our program of harbor and industrial development and that they want the members of the city council to do that thing which they agreed to do, all of which is incorporated in that lease, which is dated October 18, 1926.

25. We greatly value the confidence and good will that have been shown toward the plans which we have outlined to the city of Richmond and we are deeply indebted to all of the various organizations who have endorsed our plan of development, and this includes practically every group of outstanding importance in the city of Richmond, and we are particularly indebted to the Mayor and members of the City Council, the president and board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, the city attorney, city manager, the city engineer and the editors of the newspapers. We desire particularly to thank Mr. Garrad for the splendid contribution he has made to the harbor development program of Richmond, and particularly to acknowledge our appreciation of the letter which he addressed to the city council asking that the city council keep faith with the Ford Motor Co. and the Parr Terminal Co. Too much credit cannot be given the Merchants association and members of the service clubs, such as Lions, Rotary, Kiwanis and others, nor to the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Women's Federation, the Labor Council, and other groups who have been so enthusiastically supporting the bond issue so as to make possible the larger plan of development.

Respectfully submitted,
Parr Terminal Company.
By Fred D. Parr,
President.

Dr. Blake Warns Of Paralysis Danger

Commissioner of Health Dr. Charles R. Blake yesterday warned parents of Richmond to take all precautions to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis.

"Although," Dr. Blake said, "there are now only two cases in the city, and one of these is to leave quarantine within a short time, numerous cases of the disease are reported in various parts of the state, including neighboring cities of the bay region.

"Parents should keep their children at home as much as possible and avoid public places. Of course, schools are all right as the children are constantly being watched and as soon as the slightest symptom appeared they would be segregated from other children. The first symptoms of the disease are fever, sweating, drowsiness and pains in the neck and head."

ZANETTA CIGAR TEAM DEFEATS M'GOWANS 13-2

Bill Maloney's youngsters took the McGowan All-Stars down the line to the tune of 13-2 at the First street ball park Sunday afternoon before a large crowd assembled to see the recently organized ball team in its first start. The game was featured with thrills from start to finish.

Doyle Taylor, Zanetta star and southpaw twirler, struck out 12 men and pitched a no hit, no run game for seven innings. Hitting and fielding stars for the Zanettas were Sam Miguel, Viano, Johnson, Chambers, Matteri, Prollo, Potts, Moitoza, Collins, Klatt and Sindicich.

Considering the fact that this was the first game they had played in years the All-Stars put up a great fielding game. On the lineup were: Don Smith, McGowan, Bates, Martinez, Frazer, Banducci and Hoagland.

Martin Daley and E. Barbieri functioned in a first class manner as umpires.

Dougalls Lose After Game Is Called

The game between the Dougall Hardwares of Richmond and the Howard Radios of Alameda Sunday was called in the seventh inning with radios ahead 8 to 5.

The local team was gaining on their rivals and might have had a tie had not the game been called abruptly without notice, according to Manager Archie Kemball.

Two homers were slugged by the Radios, one each by Penix and Dresback. Turner of the Howards and Baldwin of the Dougalls doubled and J. Pinto of Richmond tripled. The Dougalls contributed three errors and made seven hits as compared with one error and 13 hits for Alameda.

Sannies Lose To Candies Sunday

Poor slugging and poor fielding on the part of the Sannies lost them the game with Kuhnhardt Candies of Brentwood at the First street park Sunday. The score was 7 to 5.

Roland Roberts was on the mound for the Sannies and pitched a [illegible] game but he did not get the [illegible] support. The Brentwood [illegible] consisted of Bliss and [illegible].

Fire Chief Cooper Reports On Convention In Portland

Chief M. E. Ryan of Redwood City was elected president of the California State association and Chief Cooper was re-elected secretary. The Pacific Coast Ladies auxiliary chose as president Mrs. R. B. Hawcroft, wife of the Reno fire chief, and Mrs. Cooper was re-elected secretary. Ross P. Davis, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the international association, succeeding the retiring president, Thomas R. Murphy, of San Francisco.

A number of entertainment features were provided for the guests. There was the Mount Hood loop trip, 173 miles, with a box luncheon served to 1200 visitors; the river boat trip down to Long View, where one of the largest lumber mills in the world is located in a town built and controlled by the company, and the illuminated fireboat drill on the Williamette river. The banquet and grand ball held last Thursday night in the municipal auditorium was attended by 1700. Many of the visitors scaled Mt. Hood last Saturday. Special entertainment features were prepared for the ladies and included boat and motor trips, theaters, swimming parties and luncheons.

Chief and Mrs. Cooper motored directly from the convention stopping only for meals along the way, and arrived in Richmond yesterday morning. Both declared they enjoyed the trip going and returning and the convention in Portland.

There were 1500 chiefs representing the larger cities of the United States, Hawaii and Canada present at the convention. Addresses were made by prominent fire chiefs and industrial engineers.

5 Hunters Bag Deer Apiece

With one deer apiece, five enthusiastic Richmond nimrods returned at 5 o'clock yesterday morning from Elk mountain in Lake county. Duke Evans of the Republic Steel Package acted as guide to the party, which consisted of V. G. Blake of the V. G. Electric company, Dike Moitoza, Sergeant H. Messenger of the Richmond police force, and an employe of the Republic Steel Package company, who is a good hunter just the same even though his name is not known.

Sergeant Messenger says that he saw more deer on this trip than on all the other hunts in this section, and attributes the success of the expedition to Duke Evans. In order to make the trip it was necessary to climb 5000 feet in seven miles in a large sedan. Messenger says that if anyone wants evidence of the deer for each of the party, he can show the antlers. The 140 miles from the hunting ground to Richmond was made in about six hours.

Windrem And Parr Lock Horns Over City Tidelands Lease

of sections of the lease. Under it the city must do everything and Parr does not agree to do anything. Parr speaks about spending $250,000 for buildings, but you must remember that the city underwrites it and agrees to pay him 5 per cent on the money. If the city will underwrite a similar agreement for me I will go out and get one million dollars in 24 hours.

VALUABLE LEASE

"To show you how valuable this lease is to Mr. Parr, I want to tell you that I have been told on the best of authority that he is ready to float a bond issue for $300,000, using the lease as the security, and a bond house is ready and willing to take the bonds.

"SHARP BARGAIN"—WINDREM

"So far as Mr. Parr is concerned I have the utmost respect for him, but I want to tell you he has driven a sharp bargain, and I would not like to meet him many times by myself for fear he might get my judgment out of plum. Mr. Parr may be taken out of this picture any day, and some shylock may step in his shoes, and every pound of flesh possible would be exacted from the people of this city. The city of Richmond has surrendered every right it has to Parr and it is powerless to interfere. I challenge any one to deny this statement. I want the city's rights to be protected in this matter.

FORD LOCATION TAKEN UP

"So far the location of the Ford factory here is concerned I want to deny that Mr. Parr was instrumental in bringing it here, and I want to further assert that no demand for streets was made by the Ford company.

"PROTEST RIGHTS"—WINDREM

"There are many things in this lease that should be reformed in order that the city's rights may be protected, and I am here fighting for the rights of the taxpayers of Richmond, and for the right of their children. Before the term of this proposed extension will expire all of us here will be dead and many of our children."

PARR REPLIES

Fred D. Parr then took the floor and made a statement in answer to Windrem. "When I was first invited to come to this city and discuss the harbor problem, I told your people I would not be interested for a term less than fifty years. I also told your people that they need not expect any direct benefits from the harbor operation for years to come. This was all understood. To make the harbor valuable, you must spend money, and the only way the Parr Terminal can derive any profits from the harbor is through its fifty per cent of the net profits. If this lease is carried out in the way it was first agreed upon, it will help the whole community. Six of the directors of the new Parr corporation are to be Richmond men, out of the total of eleven, and they will have your interests at heart. Mr Windrem denied I had anything to do with the Ford company coming here.

CLAIMS FORD LOCATION

"I want to read you the following telegram received last June, from the Ford company, and signed by H. K. Crawford, the manager. It reads: "What stands in the way of closing the Richmond purchase?" I want to say to you that no man in Richmond but Fred D. Parr brought the Ford factory to this city." Parr then went into the details of overhead charges of $600 per month ,and told they were made up attorney fees, auto hire, stenographer, office rent, and part of his secretary's salary. He closed by saying, "If you will stand back of me, we will make things hum in Richmond."

The communication from Parr in full will be found in another column of today's paper.

Ed Sullivan's SPORT WHIRL

POLO'S PORTSIDE LONE WOLF PASSES

There is more than casual interest in the announcement that J. Watson Webb has been dropped from the line-up of America's polo Big Four, the quartet that ravaged the polo fields of the world as effectively as the Four Horsemen of Blasco Ibanez's creation ravaged civilization.

For Webb was a left-hander and the only left-hander who ever attained international ranking in polo.

I doubt that the way of the left-hander, the southpaw is so hard in any other sport as in polo. Left-handers have held high estate in baseball, in tennis, in the ring and even in golf you will find ten lefties who score in the 70's. In polo they have been taboo with the notable exception of Webb.

The physical pecularities of a left-hander cannot be readily reconciled to orthodox polo.

One left-hander can throw an opposing team completely out of gear, for a left-hander swings from the wrong side of the horse. A left-hander can even throw his own team off stride and up to two or three years ago, they were barred from club tourneys.

They were considered a menace to the other players, for a novice left-hander, mounted on a fast pony, is potentially as dangerous as a dare-devil autoist on Marrick Road of a Sunday.

The feat of Webb in shattering traditions and prejudices was no minor affair. He was a great horseman, a brilliant strategist and his ability to adapt himself to team play uncanny.

THEY ARE CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Captain Donald Mackay, coach of the Allenhurst, N. J., polo club a veteran whose active polo career was halted by war wounds, has observed the progress of polo in three countries.

His observations on the left-hander is anathema to a poloist says Capt. Mackay, "the thing which further sets him in a class of his own is the rapidity with which he takes to the game.

"For some reason I have have never been able to explain, a left-hander hits a ball harder and more accurately than a right hander.

"I have a left-handed player on the Allenhurst team, Harry Isaacs. He is a novice and yet his control and hitting power set him aside from the rest of the team. Playing over the same period, with equal mounts and under similar conditions, a left-hander will outstrip a right-hander in developing.

....."Probably a contributing factor to this is the fact that a left-hander is a constant cross-word puzzle to those playing against him

"For instance if you are coming on to meet a player, traveling at full speed you mentally anticipate him to try a nearside shot that is a shot off the right side of the pony. At full speed you haven't time to think. The left-hander gums up the whole proceeding in thep opular slang for he uses an offside shot. Before you can swing your pony over to meet it, he has gotton away.

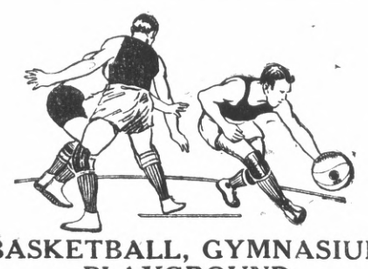

"The lefties ride a horse differently, swing a horse differently than a right-hander. Everything they do is counter-clockwise. They can upset their own team as greatly as an opposing team.

"In the history of polo Webb was the only left-hander who made the grade. He was a master horseman and a wonderful star."

HEART TROUBLE Marvelously Relieved

While visiting her daughter here in Oakland, Mrs. W. H. Morton of Stockton was in such great pain due to Heart Trouble that it affected her left hand. She could neither walk nor rest with the slightest comfort. All the physicians whom she consulted expressed the opinion that she had not more than ten days to live. She truly seemed to be at the point of death when she took her first package of the Fong Wan Herbs. It was cooked for her at home, and that night she had the first rest after many weeks of terrible suffering. After four weeks of the Fong Wan Herb Treatment, she was able to return to her home in Stockton. From that city she has sent the following testimonal to the Fong Wan Herb Co.:

OWES HER LIFE TO FONG WAN HERBS

Stockton, Cal., March 21, 1927. To the Fong Wan Herb Co.:

I have been a sufferer with valvular trouble of the heart for some time. I became so ill that my doctors, who were many, gave me but a week or ten days to live.

I decided to try the Fong Wan Herb Co., and to the amazement of all who attended me, I was able to walk into their office after taking the Herbs one week. I have now taken them four weeks and I not only have a good heart, but have also been helped in other ailments.

I cannot speak too highly of the Fong Wan Herbs, as I owe my life to them. I am very grateful to Fong Wan for his kindness.

ENROLLMENT AT LOCAL SCHOOLS AT HIGH LEVEL

While enrollment figures at the ten elementary and two high schools of Richmond are as yet unaviable, registrations yesterday with the reopening of schools were greater than any previous year in school history, according to Superintendent of Schools Walter T. Helms.

Grant, Peres, Lincoln, Nystrom and other schools showed heavy registrations. No definite figures can be obtained before the last of the week, Superintendent Helms declared as many of the children are absent from the city on vacations.

Assistant Superintendent Miss Nora Ashfield declared that the present figures as compared with the first days in past years indicate that the total enrollment will far surpass other years.

Few changes have been made in the faculty. The resignations include Miss Gertrude Woodward, Miss Christine Groefsema, Miss Marjorie Doyle, of Richmond Union high school; Miss Melba DeWitt, parttime school; Miss Irma Krause, Miss Gertrude Zimmerman, Miss Mattie Groefsema, Roosevelt Junior high school; Miss Maude Coburn, Miss Frances Coburn, Miss Dorie Lynn, Miss Mathilda Matthieen, Miss Helen Egan, elementary school.

The new teachers include: Miss Louise Plinez, David C. Gray, Martin Swenson, Richmond Union high school; Miss Ruth Utter, part time school; Miss Mollie Haussler Alec F. Horne, Miss Jeanette O. Churchill, Miss Agnes E. Weatherson Roosevelt Junior high school; Miss Siddie Cushing, Miss Lola Swain, Miss Rosale Jacobsen, Miss Cora Metz, Miss Ruth Berryhill, Miss Maybelle V. Davis, elementary schools.

Miss Mildred Cuthbeertson has been appointed to assist Miss Clara McLaurin in physical work with girls at the Union high school. W. L. Seawright was transferred from Roosevelt to assist Major Ivan Hill in physical education at the same institution. Miss Christine Walther was transferred from Harding to Roosevelt.

No new school buildings or additional class rooms have been opened. Conditions in some schools are vercrowded but these will be relieved by the opening of the Woodrow Wilson elementary school and the new Richmond Union high school will be made a second Junior high.

GOODYEAR TIRE CO. FEATURES HELD UNUSUAL

"The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., at Akron, Ohio, is one of the most unusual institutions in the country," declares A. Kastelic, proprietor of the Civic Center Tire and Battery Company at Twenty-third street and Nevin avenue.

"The Goodyear family of tire builders includes an army of some 16,000 men at the parent plant in Akron, and between 2000 and 3000 each at the factories in Los Angeles and Toronto.

"Stimulation is given to the men to give their best efforts and intelligence. Awards are paid for suggestions and improvements, the men are encouraged to use their initiative and brain power.

"Goodyear's form of shop council, the Industrial Assembly, represents the men in the shop in all questions arising, ironing out problems with the management.

"From Goodyear's general philosophy of industrial relations have evolved Seiberling Field, an athletic field of 28 acres, wth ample space for football, baseball, tennis, soccer, track and playgrounds for children; and Goodyear Hall, a monument to Goodyear's belief in education, a six-story building housing the Industrial University, a theater, gymnasium, bowling alleys and men's and women's community rooms.

"The Industrial University is the outgrowth of the early factory school, organized to give men special training, to increase their efficiency in the factory and to prepare them for more important work. In conjunction with public school authorities, continuation classes have been organized for boys who want to go to work but who must continue their schooling until they are 18."
